

Course of Study

The course of study shall be designed to fit the needs of lower division college students and may include courses of instruction designed to prepare persons for admission to the upper division of higher institutions of learning and such other courses of instruction designed to prepare persons for private business, commercial, homemaking, industrial, and other vocations, and such courses of instruction as may be deemed necessary to provide for the civic and general education of the citizens of the community.

Reference

Education Code 1971 Edition, 78201
Revised: 3/31/83